

DO NOT RELAX RULES THAT LIMIT MEDIA CONCENTRATION. A free and diverse press is essential to democracy. One owner controlling the an overwhelming portion of the public's access to news, commentary and ideas is dangerous. The FCC need to slow down and allow the public to see precisely what rule changes are being proposed. The fact that this important rule change has gotten so little coverage on TV and radio stations that are already owned by large media corporations is good evidence that allowing more concentration of ownership is NOT IN THE PUBLIC INTEREST.
